REGINA - Leap-year birthdays, which occur only once in four years, are special occasions for numerous Canadians, but in one city household it's a rare red-letter day. Both Doreen Markarowski and her daughter Shelley were born on a Feb. 29. "Doctors in Edmonton told us when Shelley was born it's a one-in-three-million chance that a mother and daughter will be born on Feb. 29," Mrs. Makarowski said. Mrs. Makarowski, born Feb. 29, 1936, celebrates her "ninth" birthday today and daughter Shelley, born in 1960, celebrates her "third" birthday.

BRUNEI - The Queen arrived in dizzying pomp and color today, rolling into town on an 80-foot golden chariot drawn by 48 Malay footmen.

Some called it the most exciting royal welcome in the memory of residents of Brunel, a small British protectorate on the tip of Bornes. Sultan Hassanal Bolklam escorted the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne into the chariot, built over a six-ton truck chassis for the aultan's 1968 coronation and remodelled for the arrival of the Royal Family.

LOS ANGELES - Actor Ernest Borgnine appeared in two courts Monday, legally changing his first name to Ernest in one and losing an attempt to gain custody of two of his children in another. Borgnine, 54, asked custody of Sharon, 6, and Cristofer, 5, from his fourth wife, Donna Ann Borgnine, 38, who has filed suit for divorce.

Superior Court Judge Joseph Wapner denied the request.

The court hearing was recessed briefly to allow Borgnine to appear in another courtroom, where he legally changed his first name from Ermes Efram to Ernest.

The Wide Picture

The importance of President Nixon's visit to China does not lie so much in any specific agreement or commitment or incident during the visit as in the salient fact that it took place at all.

For the President of the United States to have journeyed to China and talked, dined and joked with its Communist leaders could not have been seriously imagined even a year or two ago. Yet now the barriers have been substantially lowered and the world faces the possibility of a new era of at least friendly tolerance between the greatest industrial country and the largest population on the globe. Only the question of Taiwan, ultimately self-solving, appears to delay a still closer, formal relationship between the two great

Such a revolutionary change as we now see will have its positive effects - the results of the talks which engrossed the visitor and his hosts. But there will also be side effects - which may prove to event itself. When so great a weight as the United States shifts in the balance of world power, there must be a number of rearrangements to compensate.

Thus, the Soviet Union, faced with a new relationship between the capitalist United States and Moscow's rival for the Communist leadership of the world, may be expected to balance this with a closer move of its own toward the United States, or an attempt to undercut China's position, or perhaps an effort to suild a counterweight in Asia with the help of India, Japan and other countries.

Japan may be expected to review its newly exposed position in Asia and perhaps make its own deal with China, or seek a Russian association. And the other countries of Asia can be expected to assess their best interests and adjust to the new trend.

Europe, too, may find it expedient to make adjustments. With United States interest swinging to new opportunities across the Pacific it is natural to suppose there will be a diminution in Washington's European concerns, and this may call for a new approach by the European Market countries and possibly by NATO.

The details of the communique and the talks will become clarified as time goes on. It is being said that Mr. Nixon conceded more points than China's spokesmen, but this is to note the trees and ignore the forest. Freer trade, and exchanges in many fields such as science, travel, technology, and sports will be pursued, but the unprecedented fact of the breakthrough itself will be paramount. It will affect every country, it will have an immeasurable influence on the world's efforts for peace, it will start to bring 800 million people into the world society.

It is merely a personal footnote to the global repercussions that the visit has virtually assured Mr. Nixon of his second term in the White House.

"... well, he wasn't such a bad guy ... con sidering, of course, that he's a bad guy ..."

Park Proposals

I was pleased to note the recent item about the proposed park on Smith's Hill. Considering what has happened to most of the hilltops in Victoria, this is encouraging news.

But if one takes a good look at all the areas colored green on most maps of the city and bordering municipalities one must admit that our park system, if that is the word, is not very extensive. The number of fully developed parks is very small: Beacon Hill, Stadacona, Hollyod, Central (a half-park), Banfield and a few playgrounds in the city. Oak Bay has Willows, Windsor and Carnarvon: Esquimalt has Gorge Kinsmen and Saxe Point; while Saanich has several large parks with minimal development and a generous number of play parks.

This is fine, since we don't expect every park to be filled with rose garlawns and paths, etc. all at once. But the real crunch is that Beacon Hill is becoming saturated by over-use. It has had to bear the full load of the whole capital region while large tracts in neighboring areas lie untouched. Uplands Park? A war memorial and a boat launching ramp. Period. Yet this park occupies at least half the area of Beacon Hill. When is Oak Bay going to do something with it?

And speaking of Oak Bay, for how many more generations will the choice acres of Uplands and Victoria Golf Clubs be reserved only for a minority of members, instead of their being taken over 's public parks. Golfers can easily build courses farther out in the hinterlands where land is cheaper. The publie would benefit.

Finally, it is about time that someone approached the Provincial Government with the idea that they turn over the bottom half of the grounds of Government House (the Richardson Street frontage behind that histeous picket fence) to the city for park space. This would create a beautiful treed area from Lothiniere to the back fences of houses on St. Charles, and cover an area of at least twenty acres. It's only use now is as a buffer strip to ensure no houses are built below Government House. It is not used and is not needed, except as a badly needed park within walking distance by Fairfield and Gonzales residents. - C. S.

Using the Law &

It seems a travesty of justice that The Canadian Union of Public Employ-ees (CUPE), a union which has broken the law on numerous occasions, should now be successful in using the law to force a hospital to hire people it doesn't want, and doesn't need.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL PETERSON . . . took no action

Some months ago CUPE organized a mob protest in front of Sandringham Hospital, which broke the law in three ways:

1. They molested workers seeking to go to work at the hospital, and prevented them from doing so. A picture published in the Times shows the incident, with the worker faced by the striker. A policeman stands by but does nothing.

2. The mob obstructed traffic on a public highway.

3. Property was smashed and deordinary citizen could commit these offences and go unpunished. Apparently there is one law for ordinary people and another, or none at all, for

Cost of Strikes

So the labor unions think the government is declaring war on them, because the government threatens to control un-reasonable salary raises. I would say the unions have waged war against the em-- and the good of the country for the last several years.

To preserve our country and freedom, we declared war on Hitler. Just a little over a year ago the Canadian Govern-ment used severe, extreme measures to stop the FLQ. And now another saboteur within our country would run the country into bankruptcy and ruin, through greed for power. What is so wrong with putting the once respected unions in their place when, by their unreasonable demands, they are a menace to the economy of the

Our government is responsible for the future of our nation, so I think it is up to the government to stop any movement that threatens to run the country into the ground. What good is a strike to the working man, when in many cases' he loses more pay than the final raise in pay brings him? And we don't see the union leaders doing anything to help the poor worker they have put out of work during the strike. The average union worker has never had it so good, so I fail to understand why they would kill the goose that lays the golden eggs, "just to satisfy the power lust of their leaders.

When I first became a member of a union in 1946 didn't even make $1.00 an hour. Even in 1950 as a certified steam engineer I made less than $1.00 an hour. We made a good living then and you can't say that living costs have risen anywhere near what salaries have since Let's face it. The ads run by these rns are false and also dan They are attempting to brainwash tired women and men home from work who pick up the paper to read as they relax. Here they see false statements like: "Be happy again, drink So-and-so or smoke So-and-so" not adding that the results of such false happifiess can cause cancer and heart disease to mention only two diseases caused by alcohol and tobacco.

There is so much talk today about pollution. What worse pollution can there be than mind pollution with false ads about dangerous substances?

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of Feb. 29, 1912:

VANCOUVER -- This afternoon John Oliver, as president of the British Columbia Liberal Association, called the provincial convention of the party to order in O Brien's hall, corner of Hastings and Homer streets. There were over 350 delegates present. The representation is 10 delegates for each provincial member, but, owing to difficulties of transportation, the remote constituencies were unable to send down a full quota. Every riding is, however, represented.

A Non-Operative Protection

Commutation of the death sentence passed upon the convicted slayer of a Winnipeg police officer has drawn blunt comment from the chief of that city's force. He is not surprised at the decision, he says, noting: "They've commuted every other death sentence . . . for killing a policeman," since suspension of capital punishment in all cases of homicide, with the exception of those where the victims were police or prison guards, was introduced on a trial basis.

But the argument that this makes "a mockery of justice" can be an opinion only. The legal provisions of the trial period did not eliminate the possibility of clemency for the killer of a police officer.

Four commutations in such cases have left police understandably concerned about the ineffectiveness of the protection they were presumed to have. The ultimate penalty has not been en-And police and prison guards are directly exposed to lifeterm criminals who believe they cannot be sentenced to any punishment more severe than that which they already have received.

This is an issue which no doubt will be raised when the trial period during which capital punishment has been suspended comes up for review next year. It will be a significant factor when the vote is taken to determine whether or not Canada should abandon the death penalty entirely - and define that decision explicitly in new legislation. As it is, the cabinet is consistently negating a protective provision for law enforcement officers which was expressly written into the legislation by Parliament.

A Tax Route to Temperance that Canadian governments, federal and provincial, finally do something about the liquor problem. A number of diverse developments are now combining to produce a situation where, given a modicum of political guts, governments can make at least a start on controlling the consumption of alcohol through the tax

You thought that governments did that now? Well, if by "control" you mean "encourage," they do: they pursue a cheap liquor policy which significantly consumption. They won't admit this, of course, but the facts are incontrovertible from the record.

The federal excise tax on beer, for example, has been 42 cents a gallon since Dec. 1,-1967. Prior to that, it had been 38 cents for 13 years. In 1950, spirits were taxed $12 per proof gallon; this went to $13 in April of 1959 and to $14.25 at the end of 1967, where it now rests. The tax on wines has not changed materially since the war. What other federal taxes have been treated so easily?

The Ontario gallonage charge on beer was 18 and one-half cents per gallon in 1959. It didn't change until 1968, when it went to 26 cents. It was raised to 28 cents last May, ostensibly to remove the price differential which applied in northern Ontario and to permit a uniform price of $4.65 for a case of 24 small bottles (net of deposit) across the province.

One Determinant Only

This admittedly is a 50-per-cent increase in the Ontario gallonage tax over some 10 years: But gallonage tax is only one determinant of the retail price ofbeer which is effectively controlled by the Ontario Liquor Control Board - i.e., the government. And during the Sixties, the retail price increased by only 14 per cent, while the cost of living index increased by 30 per cent. In other words beer was relatively cheaper in 1970 than it was in 1961.

The Quebec government was somewhat tougher. A case of 24 small cost $4 in the Montreal area in 1960 and nets for $5.20 today - an increase of 30 per cent. It is probably no coincidence that this parallels the cost of living, but it is still a fact that Quebec beer is still as cheap. relatively speaking, as it was in 1960. Hardly a disincentive to drinking.

And what is the relationship between price and the consumption of alcohol? Like any other commodity, there is high correlation. In fact, research by the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario has established that 95 per cent of the changes in consumption can be accounted for by the amount of money people have to spend and the price they have to pay for alcohol in its various beverage forms in, say, Newfoundland and British Columbia. Newfoundland has low income levels and very high liquor prices relative to the rest of the country; its intake. at last calculation, was 1.18 gallons of absolute alcohol annually per capita. British Columbia incomes are some 60 per cent higher and liquor is much cheaper (B.C. beer is about 50 per cent cheaper); the B.C. consumption level is around 2.13 gallons of absolute alcohol per capita. Other research by the Ontagio Foundation has established beyond serious challenge that the number of alcoholics and the problem of alcoholism in any society are "inextricably linked," to quote a Foundation study, with the general level of alcohol consumption. In short, the more drinking, the more alcoholism.

GERALD LE DAIN . . . incredible answer

With some 670,000 Canadians now drink ing at or above what research has found to be the hazard level — the equivalent of three and a half-ounces of pure alcohol a day - it is apparent enough that alcoholism is not only the nation's fore-most drug problem, but its biggest health and social problem as well.

(Three and a half ounces of pure alcohol is to be found in about five and a half 12-ounce bottles of beer, or eight ozs. of whiskey or most of a bottle of

It is equally apparent that if govern ments are serious about the alcohol problem, and want to diminish the fantastic medical, social and economic costs that alcoholism entails, they can and must do it through the tax-price structure, which is entirely under government control. Such a tax-price structure, moreover, must recognize that the more higher its price should be.

Apart from a very modest effort in this direction by Alberta, however, no Canadian government has seriously thought along these lines. Indeed, they have worked against it not only by keeping the price of liquor relatively low but by discriminating between forms of liquor on the basis of such hoary shibboleths as the one about beer being the "beverage of moderation." In fact a glass of beer containing five per cent alcohol by volume is just as alcoholic as a highball of soda and whisky containing 40 per cent alcohol, which is what al spirits sold in Canada contain. It is also well established by research studies that beer can produce just as many alcoholics as whisky. But if one excludes the cheap, fortified wines produced for skid row, beer is considerably cheaper than either wine spirits when priced on an absolute alcohol basis. In Ontario, for example, the cost of a gallon of pure alcohol contained in beer in 1970 was $43.46; for wine it was $59.05, and for spirits it was $82.94. Not surprisingly, 56 per cent of the alcohol consumed was in the form of

Poor Man's Beer

Why do governments do this, in the face of ever-rising consumption levels some 17 per cent per capita, in Canada over the last 10 years? Partly the reason, of course, is political fear: the working man must have his beer. But political stupidity also plays its part most politicians are simply not informed on the latest alcohol research. The message has not been getting through to

It is quite incredible, for example, that the Le Dain Commission on drug abuse should spend over two years to issue a report which recognizes alcoholism as the country's most serious drug problem but have nothing to recommend except more and better treatment for persons once they become alcoholics. Economic preventives are the major research discovery of the last decade but not a word about them does the Le Dain mission report.

What then is happening to change the picture? At least three things, The Ontario Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research' Foundation, which knows as much or more about alcoholism as anyone, appears to be arriving at a new and more effective relationship with the Ontario cabinet. The Federal Food and Drug Directorate has recently changed its definition of beer which could lead to the beginning of a tax structure based on alcohol content. And the brewing industry has suddenly got very worried alcoholism and is debating whether to bring out a low-alcohol beer.

Why Greeks Hate the U.S.

THE NEW YORK TIMES

ATHENS five years of authoritarian rule by the junta, many Greeks rank Premier George Papadopoulos, as a principal barrier to the restoration of democracy.

This view emerged as a consensus in a series of interviews. While people formerly active in public expressed dis-States most explicitly, conversations with people in all walks of life disclosed a high degree of identity of views be-tween the former leaders of Greek political life and ordinary citizens. Politicians were less fearful, however, about allowing their opinions to be quoted.

Cover Spectrum

The conversations covered the spectrum of political lead-ers, from Panayotis Can-ellopoulos, the conservative Premier overthrown by Mr. Papadopoulos, to Llias Lliou, leader of the legal substitute of the Communist Party, outlawed since the Greek, civil war. (All party activities are outlawed now.) Among those interviewed were left-wing activists, right-wing generals cashiered by the junta, intel-lectuals of many political persuasions, former and present Conversations did not in-clude peasants because most do not feel free to talk politics with strangers, but people in regular touch with rural areas said that the same views on the government and the United States prevail there.

In the most extreme — and most commonly held — form, the view is that the United coup d'etat of April 21, 1967 or had advance knowledge but failed to warn the Can-

In consensus of Greek diplomatic observers, including Americans, this is the result of a view expressed by the strongly pro-U.S. former Foreign Minister, Evangelos Averoff-Tossizza.

The Greeks interviewed no effective resistance. From inists to royalists, they described the opposition as passive, limiting itself largely withholding support from the Government.

The most disillusioned Greeks ascribed the lack of resistance to apathy. Others said that political apathy is the result of political terror.

Trudeau knows better than that. He knows that when that. He knows that when there are 530,000 people out of work and only 44,000-vacant jobs, all the travelling and wage-cutting in the world isn't going to put everybody back to work.

So why did he tell a Toronto audience "there is work in Canada but some people may have to go to it or take something at only slightly above the minimum wage?" The reason is that Mr. Trudeau, far from being stupid, is a calculating politician who apparently intends to mine a rich lode of "I'm all right, Jack" conservatism that runs through working Canadians.

The Prime Minister knows that if there are six Canadians out of every 100 without a job, there are 94 who have one. And he probably agrees with Reuben Baetz, executive director of the Canadian Council on Social Development, that "Canadians don't hate unemployment but they hate the unemployed.'

So if he has to go into an election before the unemployment figures drop — and cab-inet ministers are saying they will go up again before they go down — the best tactic is to divert the attention of the majority away from the govern ment's economic management to a picture of a bunch of stay-at-home bums rather live on welfare than work. Mr. Trudeau is getting some support for this from Canadians who talk as if most of the people on welfare are

What the Prime Minister is doing, aside from encouraging by unemployment, is trying to divert our minds from the central failure of his adminis tration: the growing number of jobless in an ironically affluent society. This is a shabby tactic. The Prime Minister ought to unload ' the whole vocabulary of prejudice and misinformation with which he is trying to obscure the agony of unemploy-ment: participation rate, wo-men-in-the-work-force, the shiftless worker. The fact is there are 530,000 Canadians out of work and most of them are frantic to find a job, any job that will allow them to live decent lives.

weeks old now and, according to recent polls, roughly 65% of the Canadian pop-ulation have never heard of 1t, 30% have forgotten it, and there are 5% who are undecided whether they hadn't heard about it or forgot about it. This is-compthing of a disappointment to one something of a disappointment to me cause I wrote it.

Welf, I didn't exactly write all of it, but I can say that while waiting for a bus the other day, and with nothing bet-ter to do, having reread The Collected Speeches of Hon, James Richardson (Vol. II), I began drafting my own vertactical-intellectual exercise. All I car that my draft, which I carelessly say is that my draft, which I carelessly left behind in the waiting room, bears an astonishing resemblance to the actual Speech. But those, books written about Howard Hughes.

Since the Throne Speech would be the preamble to a general election, it had to be designed to patch things up, as much as a Throne Speech could, with a lot of unhappy potential voters who, for one reason or another, could be considered as presently hostile to the Government. Among those to be mollitied ernment. Among those to be mollified were the poor, the farmers, business-men, students, and people from British

Right away, things had to be patched up with the burghers of B.C., despite their unfortunate and monotonous habit electing a bigot as their Premier, ter all, Prime Minister Trudeau choosing his words carefully, had called Premier Bennett a bigot. So, my Throne Speech draft began with an attempt to smooth things over, and I

"The government thinks highly of all The government tunins lightly of an its citizens in all its provinces and territories, especially citizens from British. Columbia. Indeed, some of our best friends are British Columbians, although my government would not want one of its ministers to marry one."

For some reason, this was chang slightly, and expanded, in the actual Throne Speech, which reads: "The admission of British Columbia, which gave Canada its place on the Pa-cific Ocean, was commemorated in 1971 with much enthusiasm and a multitude of ceremonies and projects," The Speech then recalls visits to B.C. by the Speech then recalls visits to B.C. by the Queen and others in the Royal Family (Imagine Them coming all that way to lunch with him!), saying these were "much to the delight of British Columbians." It goes on to say that it gave the Governor-General "much satisfaction to take official part on several occasions in the British Columbia celebrations as well as to travel abroad....to tions, as well as to travel abroad . . . to Netherlands. Belgium, Luxembourg and

By DALTON CAMP

Speech is not identical to my original draft, but the spirit and intent are the same.

Having cooled things with B.C., reminding folk of all the delights lavished on the province by the government of Canada, we then had to pacify the business community. Getting rid of Basford and Benson simply was not enough; it was their policies the tycons did not like. In my first draft, I wrote: like. In my first draft, I wrote:

"The government is aware of the disenchantment of the businessmen, as reflected in the declining attendance figures at fund-raising dinners (despite our new policy of reduced prices), and the fact that our Red Carnation sales are disappointing. My government is prepared to let bygones be bygones: our fund-raisers are suffering these days from isolation, and if you guys will treat them with more kindness, my government will give you a Competition Act you can live with."

This got changed somewhat — but not much - by somebody in the Prime Minister's office (probably Marc La-

CAMP ... bus-stop doodling londe), who, I suspect, lacks my gift for subtlety. Anyway, the revised and of-ficial yersion reads like this:

Ficial version reads like this:

"A further imperative in the structuring of strong, internationally competitive, industry is the development of a modern and workable competition policy. The development of such a policy must proceed through consultation... During the coming weeks the government will continue this consultative process and will place before Parliaformed and constructive comments received and assistance gained.'

One of the most difficult problems we had with the Throne Speech was the economy and how to explain the face that the war against inflation had been lost at the expense of heavy unemploy-The customary explanation for such things is to claim that a distressed management, but is really an Act of God, something like the weather, about which nothing can be done, adding always the reminder that, bad as things

tical to my draft:
"The social phen instability is present today in every in-dustrialized country. We are fortunate that its ill effects have been less pronounced in Canada than elsewhere. I guess Lalonde must have changed the next paragraph around a bit, because my draft reads:

"The government is convinced, after long experience, that high unemployment is not a cure for inflation. My government continues to be against inflation and it doesn't think much of deflation that the attention of the continues to the second of the continues to the second of the continues to the second of the continues of the continues of the continues th tion either. Therefore, my government's new economic policy will be designed to achieve flation. It's just possible the paragraph above could not be translated properly, so it was redrafted to read as follows:

"The government will nevertheless redouble its efforts to make sure that as many jobs as possible are available...
It will at the same time continue to exert its influence to prevent the erosion of incomes through the maintenance of reasonably stable prices of the. goods and services required by Canadi

Then I got around to throwing a bone to the fishermen and farmers. I wrote, "These guys are important too; their productivity, their happiness, and their votes are of terrifically stupendous importance to the government and its candidates."

After a little polishing in the Prime

After a little polishing in the Prime Minister's office, it reads, "Their continued productivity and livelihood is (sic) of immense importance to the government and to the country."

All in all, bad grammar notwithstanding and considering what we had to work with, I thought the Throne Speech was one of the best I've ever written. As the Hon. James Richardson once, said, when asked why the government moved the federal mint to Winniegs, "Well, when one of my constituents asked me how to make money. I thought, I'd, show him." thought I'd show him.

Premier Benneft "officially" called Monday for Prime Minister Trudeau's resignation for swearing at federal Commit-tion Leader Robert Stanfield.

Brandishing a copy of Monday's Victoria Times, which he called the 'oldest Liberal newspaper in British Columbia."
Bennett told the legislature he had just read a story quoting Trudeau swearing at Stanfield.

He said be had made no direct comment on a previous charge from Trudeau that he is a bigot and would not repeat what the prime minister had said to Stanfield Monday in Com-

But Bennett said. "As the premier of this province and as a Canadian, I deplore these kind of tactics by the federal petroe minister, the Liberal prime minister, and I officially call the his resignation."

Trudeau's awearing at Stanfield came during a neated dis-cussion of the unemployment situation in Sudbury. Ont. The prime minister asked the Tory leader to clarify whether his question referred to the city. "Sudbury?" asked Stanfield.

Natural Gas Slowdown Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Federal Power Commission staff report said the era of unfettered growth of the U.S. natural gas industry is over.

Forecasting the next 20years, the report said the industry could continue serving existing customers but would find it increasingly difficult to serve an expanding potential market, which will turn to other fuels.

Even with stepped-up discoveries of new gas reserves, the report said domestic pro-duction could not meet ex-panding demand beyond 1975, and the nation will rely in-creasingly on imported and Of its 54 manufacturing plants, Stanley has 11 in Canada, 25 in the U.S. and 18 in Europe, South America and synthetic gas.

The report was prepared by the FPC's bureau of natural gas as a rough forecast of the supply-and-demand situation from 1970 to 1990.

Natural gas now supplies 33 per cent of total U.S. energy onsumption, the report said. _

Imported gas and synthetic gas will account for about 40 per cent of consumption by 1990.

Amendments to the Home-wner Grant Act raise the grant from $150 a year to $185 a year and give an increase to $200 to homeowners 65 years old and older.

Bennett said B.C. will spend an estimated $80.67 million on the grant this year, up $14.47 million from 1971-72.

McGeer said Bennett should make it clear this legislation exists in place of larger percapita grants to municipal-ities and the removal of edu-cation costs from property

Loffmark said all the deductions allowed under tax laws to apartment-owners represent a saving of money that is passed on to renters. There-fore, a homeowner grant simply puts homeowners, who can't deduct mortgage interest, upkeep and similar costs from taxes, on the same foot-

Dennis Cocke (NDP-New Dennis Cocke (NDF-New Westminster) said his party would support the bill, but he added it puts tenants in a bad position. Cocke said the government should ereate a down payment fund to renters equal to the yearly amount of the homeowner grant.

He said the money would be allowed to add up than be used by a tenant when he buys a house.

Boreham and the Brier -They Go Hand-in-Hand

When Bruce Boreham left town on Monday, he was off on the first leg of a 4,600-mile trip to what he considers is Canada's greatest annual amateur athlet-

All being well Bruce this week will arrive in St. John's, Newfoundland, for the 43rd Macdonald Brier Tankard competi-tion, which begins next Monday. For Bruce, it will be old hat, and another record. This year will mark the 38th time he has been to the national curling

There's a reason, of course, for this mark of devotion.

When Bruce'was a young sports writer in Winnipeg, one of his closest associates was the late George Cameron, who by chance was also president of W. L. MacKenzie and Co. Ltd., the Winnipeg representative in Western Canada for the Macdonald

Later, when Bruce had more prestige (he had become sports editor of the Trib.), it was suggested during a bull session in 1924 that "wouldn't a national curling championship be a great thing?" And because Winnipeg had the biggest bonspiel in the world, why not initiate the attempt from there?

in the world, why not initiate the attempt from there?

"It sas George's idea," said Bruce.
Everybody more or less agreed, and most important, it has 'turned out, so did Macdonalds. And so the Brier was born with the Winnipeg championship rink of that year being invited to tour Eastern Canada on a, goodwill basis.

That was in the spring of 1925. Success marked the venture, and it was repeated. Then, in 1927, a decision was made to make it a national affair to be played at Toronto.

There were city rinks entered thes. Boresham explained

There were city rinks entered then, Boreham explained. This was dropped in 1932. Prince Edward Island and British Columbia joined the crowd in 1936, and in 1951 Newfoundland got in — and then it was truly national.

Granites, Irons and Matched Rocks

There were some growing pains, Boreham admits.

There were the granite curlers from the west and die-hard fron players from the east in the early days. Both had strong supporters. Rocks were of a different weight, they weren't matched, everybody carried his own, and the west wasn't too popular with its revolutionary "pass out and lie" type of game, The Easterners were all for the draw game

"And believe it or not, it wasn't until 1940 that we got ched rocks," he said. "That was the big Brier year," he

'It was also the first time colored tops were used to iden-tify the stones; the first time we had movies and church ser-

Another myth is the advertising angle connected with the Brier, Boreham explained. "You never see Macdonalds advertise in the arena of the Brier." If that's a surprising no-no, take the case of the time when one of the local officials in charge of the competition suddenly noticed that the hockey clock in the arena had a "Players" cigarette sign.

"I'll get it covered," the anxious official assured David Stewart of Macdonalds."

"You'll do nothing of the kind," Stewart answered.

Stewart of Macdonalds."

"You'll do nothing of the kind," Stewart answered.
"They've paid for that ad, and it stays."

"They have always been for the sport," Boreham explained of the 1 bacco firm's participation, "and in my view, the Brier has been the forerunner of many of the national championships that we enjoy today. The round-robin concept has proven to be an excellent manner of deciding the title — every rink getting to meet every other rink — and several other national events now are decided this way.

'Sliding Watsons' Stirred Controversy

Bruce doesn't wholeheartedly agree that the long slide to the hog line is the greatest move ever. "Look at that." he said, as a youngster was practising at the Racquet Club, 'he's throwing himself right off balance at the start. If he could just Watson's style, he'd do better.".

This was in reference to Ken Watson of Winnipeg, one of Canada's greats, and who advances a much more simple delivery, a slide, yes, but shorter—But Watson was a bit of a disturber, in his time, and in 1936 he raised a few eyebrows. That was the year the "Sliding Watsons" followed their stones across the see line. If the style was new, it was also contentious, but it worked, and lived on. The Watson rink made it work. They were deadly accurate and won the title. Besides, they scored a seven-ender against P.E.I.

'And no, there has never been an eight-ender," Boreham

Boreham, naturally, is proud of his association with the Brier. He now is secretary of the Brier Trustees, and besides having been a newspaperman, he also has been a public relations executive with the CNR and more recently public relations director of Assinibòia Downs race track in Winnipeg.

Now he is retired, "for a second time," in Victoria; but miss the Brier? "How could I? I enjoy those friendships so "Curling," he added, "is the only game where you start with a handshake and finish with one."

But pick a winner? "Couldn't do it," he said. "It's wide open."

HOCKEY TIPS By Bobby Orr

One of the best defensive moves is the stick check. The basic idea is to bend from the waist, reach forward with the stick and knock the puck away from your opponent.

Be sure to wait for your extended stick. Knock the man to come to you. Have the stick close to your body and be can't pass the puck or constick close to your body and reach out at your opponent. If you miss, you will be beaten quite easily. One split second is all he needs to pass you. As he approaches, wait until you can reach him with your

As noted in the picture, my eyes are on the puck and I have just knocked it off the stick of the opposing player — in this case a member of the Toronto Maple Leafs..

T-Birds Take Crown

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia Thunderbirds put on a strong second-half performance to defeat University of Saskat-chewan Huskies, 97-75, and win the finals of the Western da Intercollegiate Ath-Association basketball

The win capped a comeback for Thunderbirds, who lost the first game of the best-of-three final series, 74-71, Friday night and tied it up Saturday with a 105-88 win,

The defending champion UBC Quintet were led by centre John Mills and Guard Ron Thorsen, Mills tossed in 30 points while Thorsen, hold-er of the all-time career scoring record for the school, chipped in with 27.

CHICAGO (AP) -- The telephone isn't ringing for Charley Finley. Vida Blue won't answer his calls.

The owner of Oakland Athletics says he is remaining firm in his $50,000 salary offer to his 22year-old award-winning baseball pitcher.

"But I want to talk to Vida and explain to him in person the fairness of my offer," said Finley. "In the last week I've placed 10 phone calls to him at his home in Mansfield, La. Seven times no one answered. Twice I reached his mother and once his sister. They told me Vida was out, or some-with a 24-8 record, and as a rookie, won the most-valuable-player award in the Amer-ican League and the Cy Young award, will reconsider and join the team before he is stamped an official holdout

Blue is the only Oakland player unsigned, Finley said.

"I don't mind paying a player that has proved himself, but a player can't prove himself, but a player can't prove himself in just one year," said Finley. "I've got five proven players who have signed for $50,000 or more."

Blue's contract last year was for $14,750, slightly more than the major league minimum. As fringe benefits, Finley said he threw in a luxury

"This is Gerst talking, not Vida Blue.
"He couldn't go to Japan, anyway. First, because there is an agreement in baseball that no player can leave the U.S. to play without the permission of the club owner. Second Vida has a military commitment and has monthly meetings with the reserves to meetings with the reserves to make up.

Finley said that for the first-

"Blue and Gerst came to Chicago January 8 to attend the Diamond Dinner. We met and Gerst said Blue's asking price was $92,000. The original was $115,000. I said I would stand for $45,000. A hour later

DRIVE WITH CONFIDENCE... TEST DRIVE CHEVROLET

We found out how much some little car buyers paid... and what they got for what they paid.

They should have bought Chevy's Vega.

The big reason most people buy a little car is economy.

Which makes sense.

But while "economy" is a nice, reassuring kind of word, it does come in two

There's Instant-Economy. Which means a low purchase price and worry about what you're getting into later.

Or there's Long-Term Economy. Also known as good value.

There are lots of instant-economy little cars around. But what you save in the beginning, you can lose in the long

With a car that isn't quite right for our Canadian kind of driving.

Which doesn't have the features (except sometimes as extra-cost options) that we're all used to in our cars.

And with parts and service availability that leaves big gaps in the map.

The Chevy Vega is a long-term economy little car.

Vega was designed and built in and for North American driving conditions.

In freeway driving, it can hold its own with big guys. Up long steep hills, you should see it out-hustle the other little guys. (It's our unique lighter-bigger-stronger engine that does that trick.)

And starting with those deep, foam front bucket seats, Vega gives you all the comfort you've come to expect in a car. (Even if you've never owned a car before, you've surely driven in plenty.)

Vega also gives you handling, performance and safety features we just hate to think of you driving without. Wide tires and wide stance. Front disc brakes. Power ventilation. Electric fuel pump. Side-guard door beams.

There's also 6000 North American dealers for parts and service availability, even though we know you'll hardly need it.

And there's also a choice of Vegas -2-door Sedan, Hatchback Coupe, Kammback Wagon, Panel Express truck -so you can match your Vega to whatever you want to do with a car.

And now for a very pleasant sur-

Gaglardi Talks But Doesn't Act'

DUNCAN - Rehabilitation and Social Improvement Minister Phil Gaglardi is "only talk and no action," Mayor Jim Quaife said at a special council meeting Monday evenng, Quaife said that hot air seems to be the only assis-tance that his city can expect from the provincial govern-ment on claims that Duncan was assessed unjustly 25 per cent of welfare costs.

The mayor, along with a civic delegation, had advised Gaglardi on a recent visit to Victoria of the high assessment. Delegates also told how the new federal unemployment insurance legislation is civilized greent strain on the DUNCAN Duncan tax-payers will vote on a $412,000 streets improvement referen-dum on March 18, aldermen decided Monday night.

Council is asking taxpayers to approve the bylaw so that within the next four years the city can carry out a complete upgrading of the city's 103 streets and improve drainage and sidewalks.

The money will be borrowed as required and will be paid back in 15 years at eight per cent interest.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Garry Ernest Blashfield, 26, of 1125 Oscar, was fined a total of $250 and placed on one year's probation when he appeared in provincial court Monday on charges of theft and fraud.

Blashfield was charged with stealing ki'chen utensils from a motel and obtaining food and lodgings on three oc-casions from city hostelries.

A pre-sentence report showed the accused had made partial restitution of the damages and was training for a job. Judge William Ostler gave him five months to pay the fine, starting in April.

Brendan Behan? Who's he?

Brendan Behan? Who's he?

There are people who don't know WHO Brendan Behan is, and Shay Duffia, who makes a living by becoming him on stage, keeps running into them.

For those other Victorians who don't know who Behan is: he is a famous Irish playwright and raconteur, who died in 1964 after a life of headline-grabbing, drinking and brawling, and was given the second biggest funeral in the history of Ireland.

Duffin knew Behan, from growing up in the same Dublin neighborhood, and he looks so much like him that all he uses for make-up is a curly wig and four inches of foam rubber to fake the great man's beer belly.

Duffin has the same little feet, too, size seven, and at the age of 39, is only a couple of years younger than Behan's age when the latter died of drink.

There the similarities end. Duffin only drinks when he does mainly because he found he couldn't take stout with Duffin, who regards Behan "with reverence," said that this controversial hater of "hypocrisy and sham," unfortunately took a path of self-destruction and didn't get a chance to blos-som as an artist.

"There were so many leeches draining him, and they made him believe that he was a fine, fighting Irish broth of a boy, This is what killed him."

Duffin, now a Canadian who lives out of a suitease, had been on the move as an Irish singer since the early Sixties. His "ultimate challenge" will be when he goes to Dublin within a couple of years to do Behan.

As Behan, he says in his act: "The solution of Northern Ireland is for the Roman Catholic and Protestant working class to sit down over a pint" unite against "the proper class and.

City Moves to Delay New Building Permits

City hall's program to curb over-sized downtown construction began to emerge-today when council's planning committee unanimously supported a move to hold back new building permits.

A resolution produced midway through today's committee meeting resulted in more than an hour of intensive discussion, and appeared to gain approval from a crucial two thirds of the aldermen.

The resolution will go be fore full council in nine days and would stop the issuance of building permits for down-town construction until new zoning bylaws are either approved or thrown out.

The bylaw has yet to emerge in public, but council has already outlined its major effects. Building heights will be limited to 140 feet, and the allowable bulk of new struc-tures will be cut in half.

Today planning chairman Ald: Mike Young steered the resolution through committee; eliminating objections voiced by Ald. Percy Frampton' and Clyde Savage.

In the end, Savage and Frampton voted in favor, along with Mayor Peter Pol-len, Ald. Alf Hood and Young, Ald. Tom Christie, not a Ald. Tom Christie, not a member of the committee,

Around the turn of the century, Ambrose Bierce, who spewed out acid comments on most everything, defined marriage this sardonic way:

While views and definitions of marriage differ, one thing's agreed on: the institution or slave relationship or blissfu state is in trouble in America.

Two-Year-Olds Join Day Care

The study authorizes the centre to care for 2-year-olds. Under present child care regulations, 2-year-olds are incligible for group day care.

The centre received an in-terim permit for the temporary operation of a day care mid-December. The centre has been licensed to take 3 to Supervisor Mrs. Barbara Williams thinks the centre is at last fulfilling its original purpose.

A survey of students had shown that they needed day care for children in the six months to 3-year-old category. Until December, child care regulations prevented the centre from fulfilling this

Parents of most children at the centre are UVic students.

"Children of full-time students have priority, followed by children of part-time stu-dents, faculty and neigh-borhood," Mrs. Williams said.

She pointed out that many students are not aware they qualify for a provincial sub-sidy to help pay day care fees. Cost is $70 a month for all day care, five days a week. The centre will operate all summer long to care for children of summer students.

Mrs. Williams said more than five 2-year-olds are registered but there are never more than five at the centre at any one time. This number is the maximum allowed under the temporary licence.

Monday morning, four 2ear-olds' were obviously enjoying themselves painting and playing in the "jumping room." They refer to the centre as Jullie's house because Julie Winthrope is the only one attending all day every day.

Cure Sought For Methadone Babies

WASHINGTON (WP) — The infant appeared normal at birth, But within a few days, he became increasingly irritable, crying frequently with piercing screams that filled the hospital nursery, the broke into cold sweats and began twitching violently.

He was born a dope addict — hooked on-the methadone his mother was getting as a substitute of heroin.

He is one of a growing number of "metha done babies" being seen in hospitals here and in other cities with active methadone programs for heroin addicts. Its mother was getting methadone — an inexpensive, synthetic narcotic — from Washington's narcotic treatment administration (NTA).

Dr. Miryam Davis, a pediatric neurologist who is working with the NTA on the problem of methadone babies, estimated that 50 women in methadone programs gave birth-

Withdrawal Symptoms

About 35 of their babies showed symptoms of withdrawl, ranging from an unusual degree of restlessness and irritability to convulsions.

Studies in New York City, which has the oldest methadone maintenance program, show that babies born to methadone mothers have no more birth defects than the general population

But, said Dr. Davis, doctors are not sure what the methadone — which affects the cen-tral nervous system and produces "profound changes" in the brains of the affected babies — does to their behavior and thinking pat-

"We don't know how these changes affect the developing brain of the fetus," she said. "The drug acts on the nervous system during a crucial period of its development and may have a subtle effect on the behavioral and intellectual development of the infant."

One baby, born in November at the Wash

Ington Hospital centre, still was experiencing convulsions 3½ months after birth. Another infant was extremely irritable four months after her birth at Columbia Hospital for Women in Washington. At D.C. General Hospital, the public hospital where most methadone mothers give birth, Dr. Vartolome Javate (CQ) reported 49 bubles were born last year to mothers addicted to either heroin or methadone. In his studies of 23 bubles born to methadone mothers, Javate found that 17 showed signs of withdrawl that required treatment ranging from 20 to 90 days. Most of the babies needed at least two months of hospital care before they were free of the effects of The problem of "heroin babies," addicted at birth to the drug their mother is hooked on, is well known. In one hospital on the edge of New York's Spanish Harlem, one of every 44 babies is born addicted to heroin. But until recently doctors thought metha-

The symptoms for methadone and heroin babies are the same: irritability, the practice of crawling around the crib and scraping their elbows and knees; an excitable condition; poor sleeping habits; and the habit of sucking with great anxiety—often scratching their face while trying to get fingers into their mouths—but not eating well.

their mouths — but not eating well.

"They ery a lot," said Dr. Davis, "They are not easy to console. It is a piercing, high-pitched cry, as if the baby is in pain. They are suffering."

Doctors differ over the best way to treat methadone babies. At the Hospital Centre, Dr. Milton Werthmann uses as few drugs as cossible, and scheenly only when the infant possible, and generally only when the infant goes into convulsions. "We use tincture of love very freely." he we use tincture of love very freely, nesaid. Nurses swaddle the infants, talk to them and rock them continually.

"That kid (a methadone baby) was never out of somebody's arms for hours on end. It went on for three weeks," he said.

In Chicago, doctors working for the State

Narcotics Treatment Agency try giving the mother gradually lowered doses of metha-done in the weeks just before she gives birth, in the hope that the unborn baby will undergo a gentle withdrawl while still in the mother's

Doesn't Always Work

That does not always work, however. The mother sometimes can't take the lowered dose and goes out on the street for either some heroin or more methadone. The ups and downs created by the changes in dosage subject the fetus to more stress than it can

Other doctors believe in giving methadone babies decreasing doses of methadone to wean them away from their addiction. At D.C. General, Dr. Javate is comparing the use of three drugs — including methadone—to see which works best.

Dr. Davis said there are a number of questions regarding methadone babies that need to be answered. For instance: Why do only about two-thirds of the babies born to be a second of the babies born to be a sec methadone mothers go through withdrawal? Why do mothers on methadone maintenance programs tend to give birth to healthier babies than mothers on heroin, or mothers using methadone in a detoxification program. There are about 3,500 Washington residents currently involved in methadone programs. About one-fifth are women of child-

Picking Up Pieces Two Months Later

At this time every year, I find the remaining bits and pieces of Christmas decidely depressing.

February is a grim enough and the anyway without impaling my foot on a pine needle still imbedded, pointy end up, in the carpet, whenever I walk barefoot in the living room. Having been on the receiving end of seven Christmas fruitcakes, we have been reduced to cating truitcake sandwiches, French-fried fruitcake, and creamed fruitcake on but-tered fruitcake points. I made the mistake of throwing two cops of fruitcake crumbs outside for the birds last week. Half an hour later, six sparrows were staggering along the telephone wire sing-ing "When It's Springtime in the Rockies" in close harmony, while a cardinal was Indian wrestling with a Siamese cat

Our son has developed a musical fixation on Christmas grols. Here it is the end of February and there is still a partridge in his pear tree. Every day we receive sternly worded documents from the local department stores, requesting that we pay for our December magnanimity, all of which has either broken, shrunk, or is sitting immobilized for want of fresh batteries.

Our outside lights are still hanging glumly from the-roof. Only ten weeks ago; a heady infusion of holiday spirit enabled my husband to leap smartly from my shoulders onto an icy rooftop, wrap his legs around the chimney, and clip red flashing lights onto the shingles to spell out Peace On

"Why? It looks festive."
"A red light over the door was festive two months ago. In February there is only one excuse for that light, and our area isn't even zoned for apartments!"

Some Thought On 'Bonus' Day

Leap Year Day means a "found" day to me — like the hour we get back in the fall when Daylight Saving ends.

On this found day — or bonus day — I feel especially grateful to the new gardeners who are already planning their vegetable gardens; and to older gardeners who still grow what they can just because they like fresh food.

In the words of a Yorkshireman while talking of modern food, he doesn't like everything he eats "mucked abart!"

The cartoon of Dennis the Menace asking Mother how they got the orange juice inside the orange reminded me of several years ago when an eight-year-old child told ine she only ate tomatoes bought in a store — the pale pinky ones refusing to even taste the red ripe ones offered from our gar-den because they 'might be poisonous."

So my gratitude goes to those carrying on the tradition of growing a part of their food supplies, for at least some children will have respect for soil, water and air, all needed in the production of food.

This spring already I have had contact with a young teacher interested in starting four-year-old pre-schoolers on a mini vegetable garden project.

A fascinating idea to work on, the results impossible to even guess. Only the future will show whether a biologist, agronomist, nutritionist or a dedicated vegetable producer was started on a career of human usefulness by this class in mini gardening

Vegetables and fruits have as wide a scope for the gar-dener as any other form of gardening.

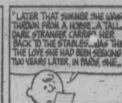

Permanent features of espallered and cordoned fruit trees, the informality of nut trees, cane fruits and grapes trained to wires — all these satisfy the aesthetic's taste for artistry in design.

In annual crops there is no lack of color — really artistic coloring, too, with variegated kale in pink, red and purple; the Blue Coco Bean having purplish foliage and stems, followed by blue purple pods. Rhubard chard with scarlet stems and gorgeously crinkled deep green leaves, and the Asparagus Pea bearing ornamental reddish-brown flowers followed by triangular pods.

All are edible, all can be eaten either cooked or raw without any "mucking about" other than what you do your

WASHINGTON (CP) Speech-makers are prone to call it "the longest undefended border in the world," but they haven't the job of keeping it safe.

Canada and the United States spend some $320,000 a year to be sure they know where this frontier is that doesn't need defending and to protect it from vandalism, greed and nature

Whatever happens out along the 5,526 miles or border, however, the real position of almost every foot of the boundary is on record here and in Ottawa, printed on 255 finely-detailed maps and bound into volumes the size, and weight of coffee tables.

The only border lines not on the maps are in coastal waters. Canada has proclaimed a 12-mile territorial limit at sea, and no agreement has yet been reached with the U.S. about extending the present boundaries past their agreed three miles.

Some of the fascination and frustration of the commis-sion's work came out during a visit to its Washington office-and talks with its chief U.S. engineer, Francis X. Popper, engineer, Francis A. Popper, a sandy-haired geodesist who likes to lead survey parties over mountain and field in pursuit of a perfect boundary.

The boundary itself, Popper explained, is so long and so diversified that the problems of maintaining it can seem Elsewhere, the border runs through farmers' fields and across plains, and the boundary commission has to keep crops and orchards from tak-ing over. Others pass through public forests and parks whose rangers sometimes re-sent keeping the boundary area cleared.

Teacher Salaries National Uproar inces means doubt—and the doubt is teacher salaries. By ARNIE HAKALA

Canadian Press Staff Writer In most provinces, teachers Teaching in Canada usually has started with the ABCs but it now appears that the fourth letter of the alphabet should want more money. The prob-lem is that provincial govern-ments are not sure they can afford the increase.

British Columbia has lit the VICTORIA GLASS fuse which could start a number of explosions in other provinces. The B.C. govern-ment is trying to hold teach-ers to a 6.5 per cent increase over 1971 scales.

Teachers are enraged.
The dispute has raised the ossibility of classrooms possibility of classrooms being closed by strike action before the current school year ends in June and of employ-ees launching an all-out drive during the next provincial election to unseat the Social Credit government.

The teachers have called a meeting this weekend to map

The Canadian Press shows that while most Canadian provinces do not anticipate strike action, there is growing unrest among teachers. Of most immediate concern is Nova Scotia, where the gov-ernment has announced a five-percent ceiling on teacher pay hikes.

Several hundred teachers protested the pay freeze and showed their disapproval by parading in front of the Nova Scotia legislature when it opened Feb. 9.

1972 CHARTER FLIGHT LIST

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

The Dangers of 'Speed'

I' wish every youngster who is "popping" or "mainlining" (injecting into his veins) the drug methamphetamine, or 'speed,' one of the most widely used of the current drugs, could read an article in Time Magazine for Jan. 31, 1972. There one reads that Dr. oB. Philip Citron, of the University of Southern California, has, since 1970, been studying and observing siges of widespread small blood vessel deterioration in 14 young drug abusers, most of whom mainlined speed.

Four of these youngsters have already been killed by the "speed." Dr. Citron has since studied another 100 patients, urthering his conviction that speed is destructive to the small Studies of the brain arteries of 19 users of speed showed that their arteries were partially plugged up. Another researcher, Dr. Calvin Rumbaugh, a radiologist (X-ray specialist), studied these 19 persons with an X-ray technique in which a dye is injected into the brain's arteries, enabling doctors to follow the path of the blood through the small blood vessels.

Then studies of five monkeys given methamphetamine for two weeks, in amounts comparable to the dosage used by drug-taking youngsters, showed serious brain injury of the type that causes deally from strukes. The scientists also studied the brains of two monkeys not given methamphetamine, and neither of the drug-free monkeys showed any sign of brain damage.

Obviously, every youngster who is using speed should stop it immediately. Fefore his brain is irreversibly damaged.

A NEW DRUG FOR VENEREAL DISEASE

As most people know, there is a venereal disease crisis in the United States. More than 20,000 cases of syphilis were reported last year, and according to Dr. William J. Brown, of the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta, every 15 seconds around the clock someone gets infected with gonorrhes.

In an effort to fight this epidemic, health officials in Carson City, Nevada, have experimented with a new drug, Progonasyl, designed to prevent the disease from infecting people. It was tested on 185 women working in the various prostitution houses in Nevada's rural counties. The drug appears to have been successful in reducing the amount of venereal infection among the women.

They took large doses (100 mg, at a time), by mouth, every other day. The patients' muscle function come back 24 to 72 hours after the treatment was begun, and it has now been maintained from six to 17 months.

A NEW DRUG FOR VENEREAL DISEASE

PATIENTS WITH MYASTHENIA GRAVIS
'I am happy to read that Drs. J. R. Warmholts and W. E. Engel have reported that five-adults with myasthenia gravis to weakness of muscles) of varying, severity and duration were helped when they were given the cortisone-like drug. Prednisone-

A complete remission of symptoms was obtained in one patient in four months, and it has been maintained for 13 months. This certainty is wonderful pews. The article appeared in the New England Journal of Medicine, for Jan. 10, 1972.

Phil's Word Final

By PETER MCNELLY Times Staff

The provincial government moved Monday to place administration of B.C.'s welfare system under the "absolute discretion" of Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gag-

Major amendments to the Social Assistance Act in-troduced in the legislature detail the powers of the minister of rehabilitation over welfare rates, eligibility and qualifica rates, eighbily and qualifica-tions for overage payments and special grants.

The bill also restricts the statement of purpose for wel-fare to say simply that it may be given to "assist, in whole or in part, individuals, whether adult or minor, or families who are unable to pro ide for themselves."

PHRASE VANISHES

The existing section of the act contains similar language but includes a phrase saying welfare is given to "assist in maintaining a reasonably nor-mal and healthy existence."

This has been deleted in the proposed amendments. Under the new proposals, the cabinet is emplowered to make wel-fare regulations and the reha-bilitation minister is given "absolute discretion" to:

Determine the eligibility of persons for welfare;

Set welfare rates;

Discontinue, reduce or increase these rates on an individual or group basis.

The cabinet is given the power to make regulations

In a press conference following introduction of the bill Gaglardi denied the amendments would make him the 'dictator' of welfare in B.C "dictator" of welfare in B.C..
He said basic policy would be set by the cabinet because he didn't want to have this power "directly on my shoulders."

Brendan Behan? Who's he?

There are people who don't know WHO Brendan Behan is, and Shay Duffin, who makes a living by becoming him on stage, keeps running into them.

Like recently the owner of the Cave nightclub in Vancouver, an interviewer from the New Westminster Columbian, a bookstore owner in Toronto, and a staff member of the University of Victoria's Martlet student newspaper.

For those other Victorians who don't know who Behan is: he is a famous Irish playwright and raconteur, who died in 1964 after a life of headline-grabbing, drinking and brawling, and was given the second biggest funeral in the history of Ireland.

Duffin knew Behan, from growing up in the same Dublin neighborhood, and he looks so much like him that all he uses for make-up is a curly wig and four inches of foam rubber to take the great man's beer belly.

Duffin has the same little feet, too, size seven, and at the age of 39, is only a couple of years younger than Behan's age when the latter died of drink.

There the similarities end. Duffin only drinks when he does Behan — mainly because he found he couldn't fake stout with construction began to emerge today when council's planning committee unanimously supported a move to hold back new building permits

City Moves to Delay New Building Permits

A resolution produced midway through today's committee meeting resulted in more than an hour of intensive discussion, and appeared to gain approval from a crucial two-thirds of the aldermen.

The resolution will go be fore full council in nine days and would stop the issuance of building permits for down-town construction until new zoning bylaws are either approved or thrown out.

The bylaw has yet to emerge in public, but council has already outlined its major effects. Building heights will be limited to 140 feet, and the tures will be cut in half.

Today planning chairman Ald. Mike Young steered the resolution through committee eliminating objections voiced by Ald. Percy Frampton and Clyde Savage.

In the end, Savage and Frampton voted in favor, along with Mayor Peter Pol-len, Ald. Alf Hood and Young. Ald. Tom Christie, not a member of the committee, voiced no objections.

Copp Project Vulnerable

Only one major building proposal appears to be affect-ed by the resolution, which can only hold back a building permit temporarily, pending the passage of the new zoning law,

Copp applied for a permit last Wednesday, and then went on holiday, saying he is not interested in a fight with the city, but obviously chagrined by the fact council two years ago approved his pro-posal in principle.

Solicitor Terry O-Grady said he thought "council hadd bigger things in mind" when he drafted the resolution. However, the term "con-struction of new buildings" was added to the resolution to clarify the matter.

Mayor Peter Pollen, who talked little during the debate, said it was "most important, that this be done in a positive attempt to prevent construc-tion activity in the city.

"What it essentially precludes are fantastically high-buildings" which have bebuildings" which have be-come possible as an "anoma-"under the old zoning laws.

"We are not endeavoring in any way to stultify and slow down development."

The restriction will apply to all building or proposed build-ing in zoning areas at present designated C-2, M-1, M-2, M-3.

Excursion Into a Much Simpler World

IT'S CLAIMED THAT A boy is prisoned in every man, and that may explain why I found myself sizing up a thumb-thick elder limb this morning. The man knew perfectly well that the soft and brittle elder is a growth of scant practical use. But the captive boy hadn't forgotten what can be fashioned from a 10-inch length of elder and a and damage to buildings on islands in the Pacific Ocean off the mouth of Tokyo Bay. Fires broke out at several locations in southwestern Tokyo after the earthquake, but were quickly contained.

There were no reports of deaths or injuries from the quake which lasted a little more than a minute.

The Japanese government's environmental agency said the evicentre was near Hachi-jo Island in the Pacific 300 miles south of Tokyo.

One wall of a government office building on Hachi'o crumbled under the impact. and police feared there would be extensive damage to the stone-walled homes character-istic of the island.

QUAKE COMING, SO GET READY

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) - Gov. Ronald Reagan has urged his newly created Earthquake Council to begin preparing for a "major earth-

"Your job is to prepare us for what I always believed is going to happen," Reagan told the 32member council at the group's organizational meeting Monday.

"We talk about them (earthquakes) as if they will never happen," he said. "We know there is going to be a major earthquake."

The council was formed earlier this month to co-ordinate earthquake preparedness programs, recommend legislation and-work on developing an earthquake warning system.
